ABOUT THE SHOW

Grandma has arrived for the holiday—and that can only mean making puppets, cooking together, washing the car, and learning lots of fun new things. This musical play with a great big heart brings the whole audience into the family with singing, finger play, and call-and response as we all give thanks for being together.

The Creative Tools for Teaching Ensemble reimagines Family Visits in two languages – fun and educational! These plays were created as part of in-school residencies promoting creativity and enriched play in early childhood classrooms, and are now presented at the Smithsonian to encourage everyone to 'get in on the act.' Playing 'pretend' as characters in stories encourages sequencing (What comes next?), verbal skills (What color flowers? Why did it happen like that?), math (How many cupcakes? Let's count the pennies we need to buy the balloon!), and problem solving (Oh no! How can we help?).

'CRAFT' A PLAY

You can make what you saw on stage today. After our shows in schools, the Creative Tools for Teaching ensemble visits Pre-K and Kindergarten classrooms to help classes craft some of the sets, props, and costumes, so they can play family too. Using both readily available and recycled materials, we invite audiences to "play the play" at home or in the classroom. Sing songs, make puppets, build forts, and use your imagination to bring these classic stories to life.

FAMILY TRADITIONS

Holidays are a time to spend with family and friends reflecting on the values and beliefs of one's community and culture. Grandma's Thanksgiving Visit introduces early learners to pre-literacy, pre-numeracy, and inquiry based learning while exploring topics of family, tradition, and community values. Learn more about how to incorporate these topics in lesson plans on the following pages.
